
Join the Marshall Children Young Docent Program at the Glebe House Museum & be a part of history that lives!

Spring Session Begins March 23, 2023

Here is your chance to really learn what life was like for the families who lived at the Glebe during the Revolutionary War era by joining our Marshall Children Young Docent Program. Learn to give guided tours, teach candle making and quill writing to other children, do open hearth cooking, make colonial crafts, visit area museums, learn about the Gertrude Jekyll Garden and have lots of fun.

Our Marshall Children are our ambassadors in the community, and participate in events like the Woodbury Christmas Festival and our well known & well attended All Hollow's Eve.

The program is open to interested children ages 6 and up, with sessions available in the Fall & Spring. Meetings are held on select Thursday afternoons from 4:00-5:30 pm. Each child will have a colonial costume to use for our special events during the year. Children become a significant part of the museum and enrich those who visit by sharing their enthusiasm and new-found knowledge.

Please call LoriAnn Witte, Museum Director for more information and to register at 203-263-2855. Information, registration forms & session dates may also be found at www.glebehousemuseum.org . There is limited space available.

*All CDC and State Health & Safety guidelines will be followed.
